NEAR EAST CRISIS MENACE TO WORLD. SAYS LORD CURZON

Turks' Pretensions Without Justification and Cannot Be Tolerated, He Declares

LONDON, Nov. 8 (By The Associated Press)—Lord Curzon, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in an address today, declared that the position in the Near East at this moment "constitutes the most definite menace to the peace of the world." He asserted that the Turkish pretensions without justification and could not be tolerated.

ASOUITHIAN-LAW -RAPPROCHEMENT WIDELY RUMORED

Both Leaders, With Eyes on Mr. Lloyd George, Make Gestures of Understanding

By Cable from Monitor Bureau LONDON, Nov. 8-Among the election assurances given by Mr. Bonar Law yesterday two stand out from the rest. They are, first, that the Con-servatives will not use the coming Parliament to make any fundamental changes in Great Britain's fiscal policy, and secondly, that they will not take up the House of Lords reform, "in any case during the first session or first two sessions." These are precisely the two Conservative measures which the Asquithians would have to ask to have postponed, if the proposals for co-operation were under con-

It is true that in England such a meeting of representatives of con-tending parties in the very midst of the election is less astonishing than if it had occurred under similar circumstances in, let us say, France; but even in England it cannot happen without exciting notice.

Both still hope that their own side may win decisively, and it would obviously be bad tactics meanwhile for cither to admit the possibility of doubt in this matter. As the struggle in the constituencies proceeds, however, and the narrowness of the margins of advantage and disadvantage declares itself, the desirability has to be examined of the alternative of an understanding between the main combatants themselves, as opposed to a deadlock in which Mr. Lloyd George and his comparatively small group of followers might become complete masters of the situation.

Labor for the moment counts for matic defeat in boroughs is discounted by the fact that a large proportion of junior men who tend generally to be progressive in their views have no local vote, though they may possess the franchise for Parliament. The electorate generally, however, and especially the new women voters, have certainly been alarmed by the Labor program; and especially by its proposals for a capital levy which appears to be not even universally accepted in Labor circles themselves, while it has roused general opposition.

payment of Labor. Whatever may have been the case in the boom succeeding the armistice, the present period of depression is not looked upon as one for revolutionary experiments of any kind.

It is argued again that a capital levy is only another way of doing clumsily what has been effected neatly, if also disastrously, by the currency printing presses of Germany and Austria. Further, in the very limited field in which the capital levy fighting once began it would quickly may not be demonstrably impossible, grow serious enough, in spite of those it tends more and more to be whittled down into a charge, payable in installments which thus approximates to the existing income tax, except that it must be more harassing to those as sessed, and that it must create a fresh horde of costly officials to enable it to be collected. There is still time for the prospects of the various parties to before the winning post of the polls on Nov. 15 is passed. For the moment, the Conservatives are definitely ahead, with Asquithian Liberals coming up full of running behind. The Lloyd Georgians and Labor are unknown quantities in the race, but either is still capable of a spurt.

Henry Cabot Lodge, United States Senator from Massachusetts, and can-been received today, that Mr. Lodge was found to have won re-election. His vote finally stood at 416,675 and that of William A. Gaston, his Democratic opponent, 414,730. Mr. Lodge obtained a plurality of 32,939 in 1916. obtained a plurality of 32,939 in 1916.

Early in the gubernatorial contest between Governor Cox and John F. Fitzgerald, Democratic nomines, the Governor began to establish a lead. He held this steadily, as all corners of the State reported, and the final compilation showed the Governor to have a vote of 468,277, against 412,232 for his opponent. With the Governor, Alvan T. Fuller went back again to the office of Lieutenant-Governor; Frederic W. Cook was re-elected Secretary of State; James Jackson was term as State Treasurer; Alonzo B. Cook was continued as State Auditor, and Jay R. Benton was elevated to the office of Attorney-General.

Other Contests of Interest

There were three other contests which were of particular interestmost important the responsibility of the voters to elect Thomas C. O'Brien instead of Mr. Pelletier. This they did, once aware of the true signifiance of the Pelletier candidacy. This contest was the outstanding feature of an election, at which Bay State voters re-elected their Republican Governor, Channing H. Cox, by a plurality much larger than that which hey accorded their senior Senator. They buried beneath an avalanche of votes a law designed to, establish political censorship of motion pictures; they refused also to strengthen the hand of the Federal Government in enforcing prohibition by passing a State enforcement code; and finally declined to return Joseph Pelletier to the office of district attorney of Suffolk County, from which he had been removed by the State Supreme Court for misfeasance, nalfeasance and nonfeasance in office. The two other important contests vere in Congressional districts, one resulting unfortunately for Republicans and the other maintaining the Congressional balance. In the Seventh District, Frederick Butler, state Senator, was opposed by William P. Connery Jr. of Lynn, who carried the district for the Democrats by about 4000 votes. Prospects of another Demo cratic seat were presented in the Sixteenth District, Charles L. Gifford (R.), of Hyannis, however, defeated James P. Doran (D.), of New Bedford by a plurality of approximately 2500 votes. The other 14 Congressional districts returned their present representatives, and the score now stands 13 to 3 against the Democrats for the Massachusetts delegation to the National House of Representatives.

Mr. Lodge, it is pointed out, may trace the closeness of his contest in no small measure to his actions on prohibition. Beside his Democratic rival, Mr. Lodge had as an opponent John A. Nicholls, candidate Prohibition-Progressive platform. Mr. Nicholls drew from Mr. Lodge a large vote, estimated on the basis of partial calculations to be between

WET GAINS CALLED DIRECT CHALLENGE TO FINISH FIGHT

Repeal of Volstead Act Seen as Outstanding Issue of 7924 Campaign

Special from Monitor Bureau WASHINGTON, Nov. 8-Admitting an unmistakable setback for national prohibition in the next House of Representatives, dry leaders today accepted the interpretation of yesterday's election verdict on light wines and beer as a direct challenge to a finish fight in 1924 with the repeal of the Velstead Act and the Eighteenth Amendment as the main issue.

Weakened by disastrous defeats in many congressional districts, national prohibition nevertheless emerged from the hardest campaign ever directed against it still safely entrenched in both houses of Congress. Election results find the numbers of the wets in the House increased to an appreciable extent, but to offset this, the drys are safely claiming four straight gains in the Senate.

"We've just begun to fight," G. C. Hinckley, national secretary of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, declared today.

"Returns show that the wets have made some strong gains in the House. declared Wayne R. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, "but we will still have a very safe majority in both houses. I am confident there will never be a return to light wines and beer."

Beyond claiming four new seats in the Senate, Mr. Wheeler declined to predict just what the dry majority in the Lower House would be until final reports come from the dry strongholds in the middle and far west. At wet headquarters specific élaims were confined to saying that "87 Congress-men indorsed by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment fornia, where we are certain of very tenable.

Special from Monitor Bureau WASHINGTON, Nov. 8-Whatever else the details of yesterday's elections may show, a strong reaction to the Democratic Party was indicated overwhelmingly in all parts of the country. The fact that there were exceptions and contradictions here and there, due to local questions, did not impair the obvious trend. is bound to give renewed vigor and activity to the national Democratic Party and put it on its mettle for the presidential campaign two years hence, upon which all political eyes are now turned.

As to the Republican party, it is also an indication for them that something must be done to regain the confidence of the electorate. Even at this time, when the returns are far from complete, it is evident that progresivism has received the approval of the voters in most instances.

Demand for Progress

The Administration has been dubbed reactionary and the discontent with this brand of political faith and methods has been registered with an emphasis heard in the White House and on Capitol Hill. The only defeated candidates for the Senate whose names have been conspicuously identified with the progressive movement, were Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, who has taken pains to impress on the voters that he was no longer a Progressive but was prepared to act at all times as a party man, Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota, whose failure can be attributed to other causes and notably voices radical dissatisfaction with the wearing of the Republi-can tag in order to win the election; and Joseph I. France, whose defeat in Maryland was due to local issues. On the other hand, Frank B. Kellogs of Minnesota, party man with one-time liberal leanings long shorn, has been defeated, not by his Democratic opponent, a woman, but by the radical Henrik Shipstead. Smith W. Brook-hart, frankly liberal, went through without difficulty in the Republican

State of Iowa.

Ralph B. Howell, liberal in Nebraska, defeated the seasoned came paigner, Gilbert M. Hitchcock, where a Democrat was elected Governor. In Michigan, Woodbridge N. Ferris, Democrat, may owe his election primarily to the desire of the voters to rid the State of the taint of Newberry-ism, but he also is a progressive Democrat and Senator Townsend was classed as a reactionary Republican. Dr. Royal S. Copeland is an un-known figure in national politics, but it is assumed that he is far more liberal in his tendencies than William M. Calder, whom he will succeed

Mistaken Interpretation

It will be recalled that early in the primary campaign the evidences of a movement toward liberalism were evident, but the impetus seemed to have been checked by the nomination of several reactionary candidates and the have been elected, and this without Republican party evidently went on considering Pennsylvania, Illinois, Misthe assumption that it had spent itsouri, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, and Caliself, which proves to have been un-

The Democrats are loth to relinquish the claim made early in the day on the face of the returns that the Republican majority was lost altogether.

The question of the size of the majority is hardly more than an academic question, however. The compelling thing is the practical repudiation of the Administration, however it may accounted for. The very fact that in so many instances there were local issues which divided the vote between the parties is taken as an indication that neither party had a strong policy or issue on which to go before the

The voters, therefore, divided according to the personal character of the candidates or on local issues, leaving only the trend from the party in power and the inclination toward liberalism as guides for political leaders' future action.

La Follette Gain Slight

Special from Monitor Bureau MADISON, Wis., Nov. 8 (Special) The conspicuous feature of vesterday's general election in this State was that the La Follette ticket received few votes in excess of the vote of the September primary. Normally the general election vote is about double that of the primaries, but of course this year's primary battle settled the isabout 220,000 in the primary. This is taken by various conservatives to con-firm their view that Senator La Follette is far from having back of him the majority sentiment of the State.

The La Follette-Blaine combination will control the new Legislature and while both leaders are wet it is not anticipated the Legislature will pass any measure antagonistic to the Volstead Law. Wet in Line for Seat

George S. Graham (R.), Represen tative from Pennsylvania, a wet, is the ranking member of the Judiciary Committee, and by the rules of se niority, usually rigidly enforced, is in line for appointment as chairman. The Administration, however, will line up on the side of the drys. Rev. O. J. Kvale, Mr. Volstead's successful opponent, is a stanch dry.

So far as the referendum votes on light wines and beer and state en-forcement codes in California, Massachusetts, Ohio and Illinois are con cerned the results indicate a draw. California and Massachusetts safely voted wet. Ohio voted against wines and beer, according to latest advices to the Anti-Saloon League. In Illinois, the result is claimed to be in doubt although the wet vote on the referendum is clearly in the majority.

Bus here is where the rub comes in according to Mr. Wheeler. A majority of the vote cast in the election must be recorded in favor of the referendum for it to be effective. Since the wet vote is not a majority of the election vote cast in the State, Mr. Wheeler declared today that the referendum undoubtedly failed to carry Acting upon the advice of their leaders, prohibitionists generally did not vote on the referendum question.

Big Wet Vote Casts Doubt on Illinois Dry Policies

Special from Monitor Bureau CHICAGO, Nov. 8-Ten months of organized, well financed and carefully developed campaigning against prohi-

bore fruit in Illinois yesterday. The wet majority on the beer and wine public policy question throws open to question the wisdom of the abstention policy adopted by dry leaders and carried out through the State. It is evident that 200,000 or more voters ignored the question forced by the wets, in addition to as many more that voted against it. But when Illinois, even with wet Chicago casting the bulk of the wet vote, rolls up a majority against pro-hibition, rising beyond the 450,000 last been achieved by the liquor people and that more effective measto meet the new tactics of the wets. Anti-prohibition forces in Congress will gain recruits from Illinois. W. E. Hull, the Peoria ex-distiller, was put over by the Republicans, and James R. Buckley, who advertised broadly in Chicago his advocacy of beer and wine, displaced John J. Gorman, the Republican incumbent. E. W. Sproul, another dry Republican Representative from Chicago, appears beaten. On the other hand, "Uncle Joe" Cannon's successor is dry, and so is William E. Mason's.

The Anti-Saloon League lost its great battle in Chicago on Anton J. Cermak, chief of the city's wet societies, for the presidency of the county board. Republican factionalism the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, was undoubtedly contributed in a large elected to the National House of Repvictory in the county. Operation of Present Law Brings More From Nordic, Fewer From Slavic Races

Special from Monitor Bureau WASHINGTON, Nov. 3-A market change for the better in the type of immigrants now entering the United States, and the eradication of those difficulties which were most evident during the first few months of the present immigration law are noted by the Department of Labor, in a statement dealing with the accomplish-ments of the "three-per-cent-quota" legislation.

Attention is called to the fact that approximately 500,000 aliens have been kept out of the country by the act during the last fiscal year, and that the percentage of immigration from northern and western Europe, as compared with that from southeastern Europe, has increased since pre-war

In 1914, only 15 per cent of European immigration was of the so-called Nordic stock, generally considered by immigration authorities as more desirable than the Slavis type, and dur-ing the last year this had increased to 36 per cent.

The countries of northern and west ern Europe, it is stated, have, how-ever, been slower to take advantage ever, been slower to take autor of their full quota allowances than those of southern and eastern Europe and Asiatic Turkey, which sent immigrants up to 95 per cent of their quotas, as compared with the 45 per cent cant by the northern countries.

quotas, as compared with the 46 per cent sant by the northern countries.

There has been a great decrease in the number admitted to the United States from Europe and Asiatic Turkey under the new law—only 219,186, as compared with 1,081,013 for 1913-14.

The fact that immigration of the older type, or Nordic stock, has increased from 15 to 36 per cent is viewed by immigration officials as "a pretty clear indication that the law is accomplishing what it was intended to accomplish in this respect."

VENICE CONFERENCE, A TZECH TRIUMPH

Gathering Regarded as a Bout in Long Diplomatic Fight for Influence on Danube

By V. A. TSANOFF

PRAGUE, Oct. 9 (Special Correspondence)—Italy's chances as an Eastern Empire appeared unrivaled, with the vanishing of Cester Reich of the Hapsburgs. An integration of the numerous races composing that Reich could be anticipated neither on the ground of the predominance of the Slavs in numbers, which was offset by their well-known tendency to disagree among themselves, nor by their territorial compactness, which was destroyed with the frustration of the corridor planned between Tzechoslovakia and Jugoslavia, nor by exencouragement and from Russia, whose aliens and vision aries chose the moment in the world's history requiring maximum efficiency, to reduce to maximum inefficiency The fruit was surely ripening for Italy, and she did not hurry to pick it.

At this critical moment Thomas G. Masaryk and Dr. Eduard Benès determined not to change old masters for new. They set to work without the loss of a second to reintegrate a Central Europe, and fill up the vacuum. They brought Serbia and together in the Little impressing upon them the fact that they had now ceased to be Balkan states pre-eminently, and had become Central European states. The Tzechoslovak minister has several advantages over the Italian. One is his permanency in office. He has seen and dealt with half a dozen predecessors of Signor Schanzer at the Consulta, and will treat with as many successors. Home politics in Italy force frequent changes in this office. Benès, on the other hand, will be Foreign Minister as long as Profesor Masaryk is President. And Professor Masaryk is President for life. Even if measures aiming to assure the succession of the Tzechoslovak presidential throne to Dr. Benes miscarry, Professor Masaryk's vitality removes hose speculations from the region of factors in foreign politics.

Signor Schanzer came with a middle-course policy. Signor Schanzer Gaining courage with every change of Italian incumbent Dr. Benès today is able to expound to Signor Schanzer the bases of Tzechoslovakia's policy in Central Europe, as the official communiqué states, and to reach an agreement with him regarding the future of Austria.

Serbia, a Problem

The Little Entente gives Dr. Benès the air of speaking for Central Europe. He does so often in reality, and he gets profit from it steadily. Italy, for one, finds Serbia difficult to deal with. The Serbs care little for the territorial concessions the Croats and Slovenes have had to make to terials stored there already have been ltaly. These concessions rather sim-sold. Italy. plify her task of dominating them, in that their number is diminished. Yet Italy and the Serbs have never been able to arrive at a modus vivendi. Rumania is far away, and under steady menace of a Russian movement to recover Bessarabia. Centrally located. Prague has masterfully assumed the leadership, or at least spokesmanship and the Powers have not had the lei sure to challenge this.

The question between Dr. Benès and Signor Schanzer now is to prevent Austria from collapsing. Six weeks ago Austria was determined to end her state existence and sought a country in which she would be allowed to merge herself. None would allow her to join Germany; Italy would not allow her to join Tzechoslovakia; the Little Entente would not allow her to join Italy.

Dr. Seipel approached Dr. Benès. Then he approached Signor Schanzer. Signor Schanzer sent him home with one or two million dollars, the promise of more, and certain agreements in his portfolio which are not supto have all come to public knowledge.

Tzech public opinion has been worried since that event. Italy at Vienna means many things. None of them harmonize with the constitution and objects of the Little Entente. harmonize rather with the constitution of a new Little Entente inclusive eventually of Hungary, which would render the work of three years by Professor Masaryk and Dr. Benès nugatory. After having disposed of French political support of Hungary, whose extreme Nationalism makes her ery sympathetic to powerful French circles, Tzechoslovakia did not propose to leave the field without a fight to the Italians.

Rapprochement with Hungary

A compromise will now be sought.

Mr. Attwill indicated that increases of passenger and freight rates in New England were to be avoided if possible on account of the additional burden they would impose upon industries. No improvement of management or efficiency, he pointed out, would be able entirely to make up the great difference between present returns and present expenses. The only relief could come from increased returns from the following sources, he said:

(1) Compensation from those who receive the special privilege of having their freight switched to and from private tracks. (2) More adequate compensation from the United States Government for the carriage of mail. (3) More revenue from the carriage of express matter. (4) Compensation for the carriage of express matter. Particularly in New England, where there are so many short branch lines, is the cost of transporting the United States mail greater than elsewhere, Mr. Attwill said. The express com-panies, which during the period of federal control accumulated a deficit of more than $70,000,000, have since that time been a charge upon the railroads, he asserted, and that only higher rates could make them less a burden. In his final plea for a merger which would not include interests outside New England, he said:

I prefer to see the roads of New England in a system of its own. Our problems in New England are more or less alike. A New England system would probably result in its being operated and controlled by New England men, sympathetic, with our needs and desires and interested in our industries. It would mean that the system would be financed largely by New England capital and would be one in which our people would have a local pride.

What should be specially remarked bout the endurance tests for aero-lanes that have lately been made in rance is the possibility that they preshadow of transatlantic air liners. France is the possibility that they foreshadow of transatiantic air ilners. Boussoutrot for example fiew round and round Le Bourget for over 34 hours and it is calculated that had he flown in a straight line he would have reached. Newfoundland. The only reason why he came straight down at last was that this petrol ran out, but it has been shown that this was merely an error of calculation and that it would be easy to take up still larger supplies of petrol. As on, these long flights it is the practice to have two men at the wheel who take alternate naps here is no reason why the Atlantic should not be crossed quite regularly in a day and a hall. At prescui no doubt the idea of superseding the great Atlantic liners seems frantastic out as these duration tests have now been repeatedly made it will be found on reflection that there is no good reason why with the necessary improvements we should not start from the United States in the evening and reach Europe on the morrow of the following day. Doubtless, too, the speed could be accelerated and the ocean be traversed in a single day. The prospect that is opened up is remarkable. Distance is being annihilated and continent brought next door to continent.

The French Communists are in bad way as is shown by the con-gress which they have just held. When at the famous Tours congress the Socialist Party which Jean Jaures had ified was broken up at the dictation of Moscow and the former leaders nominiously expelled, the Com-unists who thus seized the party machinery were jubilant and prophe-sied great things. They believed that in a year or two they would have ne more than the effete Socialist Party which they replaced had done in a generation. Full of enthusiasm these inexperienced and misguided politicians started off with revolutionary notions and for some time they did attract to themselves many adherents. But in a year the zeal had broken itself on the rocks of harsh reality. The magnificent promises had not been fulfilled and the disappointed neophytes began to resign in hundreds and then in thousands. The Russian revolution itself proved that the promised land of Communism was still far off and indeed could never be reached. Now the Communists have awakeped to the fact that they have discarded the best friends of Socialism, have falled in their purpose, and are dwindling away to nothing. It is a very chastened congress which is now held and the inexperienced and misguided to nothing. It is a very chastened congress which is now held and the result of these wonderful declarations

Women's clothes are comparatively unornamented. Most of us with an artistic eye think that the present fashion is in this respect excellent. But unfortunately the tendency to discard trimmings has dealt a severe blow at an old industry which forms a somewhat important part of Paris economic life. The trade which depends upon the use of ribbons and beads and embroideries and so forth is thoroughly alarmed and is begging the fashionable dressmakers to revert to the former styles. On his return to France from Russia, M. Herriot stated that broadly speaking he was satisfied with the results of his visit. He had acquired the conviction that a Franco-Russian rapprochement is not only desirable but feasible. "It is," continued M. Herriot, "not the question of the debt which creates the greatest obstacle; it is private property. But I feel that skillful negotiators can turn the difficulty by seeking a formula of comcuity by seeking a formula of com-promise. I believe this can be found. On the other hand, on a number of other vital problems, the French and Bolshevist points of view are suffi-ciently near to each other. Another effort to meet objections is seen in the five forms of equal rights legislation to be submitted for the consideration of state committees, as a substitute for the original "blanket bill." AMERICA MUST ASK TURKS FOR PERMIT IN THE STRAITS

Warships at Constantinople May Be Moved Only by Authorization of the Kemalists

Special from Monitor Bureau WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—The United States has been officially informed that the Turkish Nationalists will demand a permit for all warships passing through the Straits, the information being forwarded by Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, American High Commissioner, who also reported on the coup by which the Nationalists took

The State Department has transmitted no new instructions regarding American warships to Rear Admiral Bristol as a result of the communi tion. While Administration officials de-cline to comment in detail upon the Near Eastern situation it is understood that Admiral Bristol will cooperate as far as possible with the allied high commissioners in any ac-tion he takes regarding the move-ments of American warships. Under naval regulations the Admiral has full power to use his own discretion about the use of warships in case of great emergency, this power extending to the landing of marines or bluejackets in case it is necessary to protect American lives or property.

Freedom of Dardanelles

All the resources of American diplomacy will be utilized by the United States to prevent the Turks from gaining permanent control of the Dardanelles. This Government will co-operate with the Allies in every e way to checkmate any attempt by the Turks to alter the international character of the Dardanelles. The Administration is not prepared, however, to employ the military or naval forces of the Nation in support of the freedom of the Dardanelles, and if there is fighting to be done, the Allies

Tremendous pressure was brought to bear on this Government at the time of the Smyrna disaster by members of powerful religious organizations who believed the United States should intervene with Turkey with its army and navy. It is pointed out that in case of a similar catastrophe at Constantinople this pressure would be renewed with still greater force.

It is believed here that Mustapha Kemal will do everything possible to avert a repetition of the Smyrna disaster.

"Handsomer Than Gold"-Guaranteed 25 Years

ES, go and see the 25-year Pen that rivals the beauty, poise and grace of the Scarlet Tanager! Only the Duofold is a softer red, that looks like fine lacquer.

This is the pen that 62 men in a hundred picked out first by actual count. Its popularity is fairly sweeping America. Geo. S. Parker, inventor of the leak-proof "Lucky Curve," created this Over-size Duofold with a native Iridium point as smooth and life-enduring as a hard jewel bearing. It needs no "breaking in" and is guaranteed 25 years for wear and mechanical perfection.

Go up to any pen counter and see its over-size barrel that holds nearly twice the ink of the ordinary. If you're known to the dealer he will give you one for 30 days' Free Trial.

Like every important creation, Duofold is being copied. But red rubber does not make a 25-year point. Be sure your pen is stamped "Duofold—Parker Lucky Curve." Your hand will crave the business-like feel of its weight, fit and balance.

NEW TAXATION

the Real Task Is to Live Within State's Income

AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 8 (Special)—Gov. Percival P. Baxter told the Maine assessors, at their sixth annual convention vesterday, that it would cost $25,000,000 to run the State next year if all the requests were to be approved by the incoming Legislature and that budgets would have to be severely trimmed to get the amount down to approximately $9,900,000, the amoun is now costing to conduct the affairs of the State.

"It is no trick to find new methods of taxation," said Governor Baxter. There is always some thing or som right yet remaining to be taxed. The real task is to live within the income of the State. Many of our small towns are staggering under a tremendously heavy state of taxation—as high as six mills in some cases. They have all they can stand up under. I would like to see the business of Maine carried on for the next two years without any new taxes being imposed, and I am going to do everything I can to keep the tax bills of this State down.

We spent $2,870,000 on roads the past year, which is 476 per cent more han we spent six years ago. Our highway bond money will just about carry us through 1924 and 1925, and the Legislature will have to take some action or we shall find ourselves without funds after that time. I would suggest the issuing of more bonds, the placing of a tax on gasoline or the addition of a direct tax to the existing rate to provide these funds."

Valuation and taxation of summer residents and equalization of taxes were the subjects of two outstanding addresses made by Arthur L. Jones of Old Orchard and A. W. Patterson of Castine.

Mr. Jones said that the impression lieve that the circulars are dressed in had gone abroad, that in some secof Maine the local assessors were inclined to "soak the summer He thought that the local assessors should see to it that such wrong practice does not exist. Provision is made for adapting the study to the special interests and abilities of the pupils, for "history content is not a dead level which can be assigned in blocks of pages. It is like a diversified country with hills and mountain peaks, here and there, towering conspicuously above the horizon line." The importance of an event will, of course, determine the amount of time spent on it. The pamphlet further says:

Some lessons are fundamentally map lessons and should be so treated. Some are descriptive recitation lessons. Others are so difficult that dramatization and other devices should be employed as aids in visualizing the thought. Proper organization of history naturally demands that outlines and diagrams should be used, but these should be worked out by the class and should never be "let down from above." The assignment of special topicg is a great incentive to good work, and progressive teachers of history will acquaint them selves with the various efforts being made to "socialise" the recitation. This work makes the pupil more attentive and self-reliant. It results in the formation of more definite opinions, encourages the courteous interchanges, of ideas and develops skill in discussion.

CHICAGO SETTLING ZONING PROBLEMS

Commission Is to Allow Erection of Shops Along Many of the Boulevards

Special from Monitor Bureau CHICAGO, Oct. 26-Zoning is commanding a great deal of attention in Chicago at this time, when the final draft of a zoning ordinance is being prepared by the commission appointed for that purpose. One of the radical features of the new movement is recognition of the fact that Chicago's wonderful boulevards no longer are looked upon by experts as the city's most desirable residential streets.

"Fifteen years ago, when we had only carriages, the boulevards were undoubtedly the best streets on which to live," said Charles Bostrom, chairman of the zoning commission, "but today with the increased use of automobiles the streets are becoming noisy and filled with obnoxious gases, to say nothing of the danger to children living along them.

"In making the zoning ordinance we therefore will permit commercial shops, such as now front on Sheridan Road in uptown Chicago, to build up along the boulevard system in most districts. However, in those strictly residence sections, such as that north of Bryn Mawr Avenue on Sheridan Road, commercial enterprises will not be permitted.

Of course the boulevards near the parks will be restricted to residences. However, in the western section of the city, where industries skirt the system, the factories will be allowed to stay. We know the fact that Chicago permits factories adjacent to boulevards in some sections is not generally approved by town planners, but we are not building a show place, we are building a great city to house commerce and industry. The zoning changes should not effect the beauty of the boulevards, for the class of commercial buildings that will line the commercial buildings that will be commercial bu commercial buildings that will line the resentative of The Christian Science The building belongs to the public system will be of a high quality. The building height phase of zoning seemed to be of special interest to real estate men. Charles M. Nichols, chairman of the zoning committee of the Chicago Real Estate Board, has announced arrangements for a series of meetings to which leading expert zoners from all over the country are to be brought as speakers to talk on this subject.

The commission has not positively process, which deposits natural stone that he hopes the work will be completed before winter. The contract in the contract for the reconstruction was let to John J. Early, inventor of the Early process, and he began actual work more than a month ago.

Sustaining the Prohibition Law To the Editor of The Christian Science

Prohibition has been brought about in effect, it is true, but the advocates of prohibition will have a hard fight ahead of them if they expect to maintain the Prohibition Amendment in the future. The wets of this country, and particularly the wets of European countries, which prohibition has not countries, which prohibition has not yet affected, are organizing fast, and threatening ominously to overthrow the law in this country—a law which has only been brought about by so much hard work and suffering. It is high time that the advocates of prohibition were organizing in a determined stand against any attempts of the wets to abolish the Prohibition Law; and that the leading newspapers.

They caught perch in the lake, they had their dry groceries sent from a mail order house in one consignment. The man walked back and forth from classes, and it was amasing how cheaply they had tented through the summer.

It was this class of people Dr. Goodnight had in mind in continuing the colony, in keeping it primitive, and in not putting in agreement.

Carlyle's Approval and His Notes

Carlyle was so pleased with the facilities offered by the library that he relied on it almost entirely for his reading and spoke of the librarian as "the only real bibliographer in Great Britain," an opinion to which his good wife refused to subscribe.

The habit of marking books is not confined to naughty boys, for Carlyle marked practically every book he used. At the end of eloquent passages it was his custom to draw a pair of ass's ears.

M. Guizot, the French historian, made good use of the library and was loud in its praises. He spoke especially a special state of the summer session fee as a guarantee of ass's ears.

In the following year a deep well was driven, a concrete well platform put on, and a good iron pump, so that the colony has had excellent water every season. PORT OF RANGOON BEATS ITS RECORDS

Commissioners Report Figures for Past Year Highest Ever Experienced

CALCUTTA, Oct. 1 (Special Correspondence)-Citizens of Rangoon in particular and of Burma in general may justifiably take pride in the latest report of the port commissioner. Although a setback to the trade of the port was anticipated on account of trade depression, none in fact took place. In fact the traffic-handled during last year reached the Receipts highest figure on record. Receipts from river dues afford a good indication of traffic movements and in this respect in the aggregate the port very nearly regained the pre-war level of 1913-14—a record year, and when surcharges are taken into ac count, the river dues exceeded all previous records.

The volume of traffic was also the highest known and the general vitality of the port trade enabled the com-missioners to face the question of their increased working costs with more equanimity than would otherwise have been the case. Up to the present Burma has mainly relied on its magnificent system of waterways and the bulk of the merchandise, both imported and exported, has been waterborne. Most important of all of course is the further development of the port of Rangoon itself in order to meet the growing trade of Burma and to make it grow still further.

.A very important scheme has been projected in conjunction with the Rangoon Development Trust, and as soon as trade and finance permit the work will be undertaken and should have a most beneficial effect on the trade both of the port and the city. Minor improvements are proceeding all the time. The latest statistics or the subject are somewhat behindhand, but show that as regards income and expenditure, Rangoon comes fourth in the ports of India and Burma.

The aptitude of the Press Gallery for Parliamentary portrayal is prodigious and catholic, and if, from its multiple pens, have flowed countless caricatures, on its flood of ink have also been borne many a fair craft of critical appraisal and of generous tribute. One day it may be the angle at which a politician wears his hat that is the topic, but the next it may be a lucid disquisition on the angle of the same man's viewpoint. The man in the gallery, watching the animated scene on the historic benches below, may see only a sordid striving for party place and power, or he may see an empire in the making. the latter would stand to lose much if deprived of the aid and co-operation of the former. There is every reason, therefore, for a continuance of the methods now prevalent for keeping press and Parliament in intimate touch. One of these methods is the opportunity for conversation in the lobbies of the House between individual members and individual press men, and another method is the annual dinner given by the Press Gallery, for which the members' dining rooms are permitted to be used, and at which distinguished Parliamentarians are honored guests; while in the realm of sport, too, there is

ture through the last of the eighteenth and the early years of the nineteenth centuries, to the passing of Barye, pioneer sculptor of ani-mals, was described recently by Lorado Taft in his lecture to students of the Art Institute.

Houdon, creator of the famous seated statue of Washington; David d'Angers, designer of matchless medallions; François Rude, sculptor of dallions; François Rude, sculptor of the "Marseillaise" group on the Arc de Triomphe in Paris, and Barye, are the great names, Mr. Taft said.

SURVEY SHOWS GAIN IN MOTOR TRUCK INDUSTRY

Demand for Motorized Service Grows as General Business

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (Special)-"The motor industry has jumped from fourteenth to third place among American industries during the last five years," declared F. W. Fenn, secretary of the National Motor Truck Committee of the National Automobile Chamber, of Commerce to a representative of The Commerce, to a representative of The Christian Science Monitor. Mr. Fenn has just returned from a trip through New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois and Michigan, where he visited the important motor truck factories.

"We are now out of the woods," continued Mr. Fenn, "and I can see

Mr. Fenn said he found the factories so busy in some of the centers that it looked as if there might by a labor shortage. This fact, however, SUSTAINED RISE was not giving motor manufacturers any immediate concern, so great was their satisfaction over the way business was improving.

Motor Truck Output Grows

"The chief impediments to prog-ress." he continued, "have been the interferences with transportation, both direct and indirect. The motor truck has had to await the return of normal conditions in other industries, because the motor truck industry is dependent on production of the things that require transportation.

"Output of motor trucks by memprevious month, and an increase of over $1 per cent in August 1921."

Mr. Fenn pointed out the close rela-tion to increased production in motor trucks and the petroleum industry.
"It has been estimated," he said, "that $148,000,000 will be spent on new acreage within the next few years, which will obviously entail motor truck operations on a large scale, as approximately 75 per cent of the work in Texas and Oklahoma oil fields is now exerted on by means of a spent. now carried on by means of a spe-cially designed truck. Everything points to a larger motorized service in the oil fields. The Standard Oil Company is now transporting barrel package goods from refineries to warehouses in near-by cities by motor ruck instead of by rail as formerly."
Predictions have been made, according to Mr. Fenn, that within the next two years all mules and oxen now used in lumbering in the south will be replaced by tractors and

"Where good drivers are secured e costs of maintenance compare the costs of maintenance compare favorably with that of railroads, as the trucks and trailers will be insured against loss at reasonable rates. During dry summer months, where the soil is hard or of gravel, small tracts of timber can be hauled with comparatively little work and on grades where it would be impossible for locomotives to work."

Mr. Fenn disclosed some interesting truck in milk distribution. He said: "There is a distinct tendency through-out the country to move milk in this manner. Motor trucks now bring into Cincinnati 97 per cent of the daily supply; Kansas City 40 per cent; Atlanta, Ga., 90 per cent, and Indianapolis 80 per cent. Preference is shown for a glass-lined thermos tank mounted on a truck. In Milwaukee, 90 per cent of the milk is brought in daily in this manner; in Detroit, one firm hauls nearly 20,000 gallons of milk in a day, a remarkable feature being that it does not vary three degrees on the hottest day. The tanks hold from 1200 to 2000 gallons each. Besides being glass-lined they are insulated with cork."

The bonds are dated Nov. 1, 1922, and are due Nov. 1, 1942. The principal and interest is payable in United States gold coin at the National City Bank of New York.

MILLS' OPERATIONS EXPAND The marked betterment in the demand for cotton goods during recent weeks is finding its reflection in rapidly expanding operations of the cotton mills. Many of them, closed or greatly handicapped through the spring and summer by strikes, are now approaching capacity output.

BRAZILIAN SUGAR EXPORTS BREAKING PREVIOUS RECORDS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 30 (Special Correspondence)—Exportation of Bra-zilian sugar during the first seven months of this year surpassed all records and sugar now holds fourth place as regards the value of the country's agricultural production, and this in spite of the fact that the price of the sugar exported this year is only slightly over half the price of last year's sugar.

Exports of sugar from Brazil durino

The declines in values is shown by the fact that the 127,632 tons exported in the seven months period were val-ued at 50,649,000 milrets, while the 80,649 tons last year were valued at 53,80,000 milrets. The 48,153 tons exported in the first seven months of 1920 were valued at 51,526,000 milreis; the 21,606 tons in 1919 at 15,959. 00 milreis, and the 5103 tens in 1913

IN MONEY RATES NOT EXPECTED

Harvard Economic Service in reekly letter says in part.

The movement of money is the mosi significant factor in the business sit-uation at the present moment. This does not alter our forecast of a con-tinued rise of prices and further expansion of business activity during the first half of 1923, with a strong probability that both movements will be continued during the second half "Output of motor trucks by mem-bers of the Chamber of Commerce imply that the upward swing of busiwas 10,400 last August, which was a ness will necessarily terminate in gain of nearly 25 per cent over the 1923; but means simply that until the first of next year we shall not have the data needed for a loager forecast.

The rise of actual money rates dur-ing the past two months was no greater than that which regularly occurred each autumn in pre-war times The stiffening of rates this year may be entirely due to seasonal demands, reinforced by deferred credit require ments growing out of transportation and labor difficulties. In any case our strong banking situation makes it improbable that a sharp and sustained rise of money rates will occur for a considerable time to come.

TREASURY DEFINES ITS POLICY ON THE NEW MARKING LAW

NEW YORK, Nov. 7 (Special)—The First official communication, outlining the attitude of the Treasury Department relative to the aplication of the mark-of-origin provisions in the new tariff law, has just been received here in the form of a letter addressed to the National Council of American Importers & Traders, Inc. This letter refers to a situation that is causing much concern to customs officials at New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and other ports and resulting in serious congestion of imports held as not complying with the changed regula-

Immediately upon completing his college course Mr. Morrow entered the employ of the New York law firm of Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett. From the beginning the young law student evinced marked talent for the legal profession, so it occasioned no surprise when, in 1905, he was taken into the firm as a member, continuing actively associated with it until 1914. In the latter year he was admitted to membership in the house of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Mr. Morrow's pre-eminent participation in the legal phases of the world of finance through his connection with the Morgan institution is written into Union sole leather tanners report an the history of the banking business. COPPERS HAVE HAD RELATIVELY LARGE MARKET ADVANCE

Those who are arguing in favor of an upward movement in the copper stocks, assert that this group failed to catch the step of the big bull market witnessed during the last 14 months in the rails and in-followers to know that as a matter of fact the copper shares have advanced from their 1921 lows relatively more

White Canvas Shoe in Favor

Orders for spring business in certain specialties shoes from $2.50@3.75, and ladies at 18-14 cents.

Boston glazed kid tanners are bookleather leading, although glazed kid and tan side leather still hold a strong also a fair foreign business. Philacoming into notice after considerable duliness. The reported bookings for the last week approximated 180,-000 pairs. The white canvas line was especially favored during October because of an advance of 5 cents a pair, effective Nov. 6, about 2,000,000 pairs having been booked for February, March, and April shipment.

Ladies' footwear, medium to high grades novelties, is not meeting the call which was expected. Buyers come and go leaving little more than sample orders behind, determined to wait until something like an established list of patterns is adopted rather than hazard a purchase of goods likely to become obsolete before the completion of an order.

Shoe prices rule strong at late advances, and at present there is no indications that any radical changes will occur when the trade swings into the activities of a spring busithe war.

Sole Leather Tanners Active

The call for heavy sole leather con tinues to absorb receipts, but the light weights tend toward accumulation. weights are accepted at the usual difference. Prices are strong. Heavy steer backs sell from 55@52c; light steer backs, 48@45c; selected cow backs, 45@43c; light cow backs, tan-nery run, 46@44c; prime heavy coun-try backs, 45@43c, and Chicago bends,

Oak sole is having a steady demand especially on the nine and ten iron leather. Prices are strong.

Boston side upper leather tanners report a good demand for all tannages, bearing heavily on the No. 2 and No. 3 grades which are scarce. Colored chrome, top grades, sell at 30@28c. Chicago tanners say that buyers are after low priced leather, but the market is sold bare of such stock. Colored chrome (seconds) are offered at 26@24c., thirds 22@20c. and cheaper lots, as they run, 18@12c., with now and then a job lot at 10c flat.

Boston calf skin tanners are active, with prices firm. The heavier skins weight skins has improved as the shoe being frequently substituted. Men's 'Tax exempt

SYNDICATE OFFERS NEW BOSTON & MAINE 10-YEAR GOLD BONDS

A syndicate composed of Merrill, Oldham & Co., Paine, Webber & Co., Blodget & Co., Cyrus Peirce & Co. and Reilly, Brock & Co. are offering a new issue of $4,000,000 Boston & Maine Railroad 6 per cent 10-year gold bonds at 95½ to yield about 6.62 per cent.

In enumerating the merits of the issue, the syndicate calls attention to the fact that for the so-called "test period" the company showed a bal-ance after fixed charges and after al-lowing for normal dividends on the preferred stock of $1,735,029, equiva-lent to 4.39 per cent on $30,505,100 common stock. This "test period" was used by the United States Government ness which makers as well as distrib-in determining a fair compensation for railroads under Federal control in volume any normal year prior to and was considered an indication of normal earning capacity.

For the first eight months of 1922 the net railway operating income of the Boston & Maine was greater by $7,554.717 than for the corresponding period of the previous year and is now in excess of fixed charges. It is said by the bankers that the total funded debt amounts to $138,201,079, and there is practically double that amount in actual property value. amount in actual property value.

Wheat and Linseed Crops Excellent-Hides and Wool Strong

The First National Bank of Bosto has received the following cable at vice from its Buenos Aires branch:

The prospects of wheat and linear crops continue excellent. Wheat if im with prices up 3 per cent; linear stocks are small, with prices fluctuating and a net gain of 5 per cent.

The cattle situation is worse, wit receipts large and the deman smaller. Prices of all grades have dropped heavily, and no improvement is expected in the immediate future.

Wool prices are temporarily inflated due to slow arrivals of the new clip and there is keen bidding for sample by the principal buyers of the State and there is keen bidding for samples by the principal buyers of the States and France. Growers anticipate higher prices, but dealers expect a drop after the present flurry, when receipts become heavier in some quarters. The sentiment is expressed that there will be enough wool for all. The new clip will probably reach 215.000 to 220,000 bales, instead of 195,000; as estimated in June.

as estimated in June.

Hides continue strong and the demand is very active. Prices of types have advanced; Frigorificos per cent, Butchers 15 per cent, d per cent, Butchers 15 per cent, dry 8 per cent. September exports were 650,000 hides, compared with 590,000 in August and 413,000 in September, 1921. October exports probably exceed September's. Sheepskins continue firm and in good demand, although the drop in francs interferes somewhat with French buying.

its are small; operations are difficult especially after the increase in the New York discount rate. Competition is keen, principally in hide bills, and some wool and grain.

October failures amounted to 11 150,000 pesos (paper), compared with 9,800,000 for September, and 16,000,000 for October, 1921. The 1922 totals to date are 105,700,000, compared with 118,800,000 for a similar period last year. The increased failure totals in September and October were due to heavy rains in the preceding three months, hindering transportation and restricting retail trade.

The credit situation continues generally easy. Good signatures find ample funds. Collections are good. September bank clearings were slightly above those in August, but 10 per cent below those in September 1821. below those in September, 1921.

CALIFORNIA AT HIGH LEVEL IN BANKING POWER

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 7 (Special)—California has moved up to fifth place among the states in banking piace among the states in banking power. Aggregate assets of banks operating under the laws of the State are nearly $162,000,000 greater than they were a year ago, according to the report of Jonathan Dodge, State Superintendent of Banking, whose annual report has just been made public. The banking power of California is now greater than it ever has been, and it is exceeded only by New York Penn. it is exceeded only by New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, and Massachusetts, in the order named.

Aggregate assets of the banks ope ating under the State laws are $1,657,-940,000, exactly $161,903,805 greater than they were one xear ago.

The Factor Of Safety

In times like these the factor of safety is by far the most important consideration of every true investor. The promise of excessive profit does not appeal to him. His chief aim is to have his capital conserved and his interest punctually paid.

WOOL TRADING OUIETER BUT PRICES HOLD

market, but the strength of prices is not impaired; in fact, the tendency of prices is to advance when they move. THIS QUARTER'S The present lull in activity in part is undoubtedly due to the fact that the manufacturers are comfortably well covered in raw materials against their manufacturing requirements at least, so far as their present contracts are concerned. However, the market for manufactured goods is normal and despite recent further advances in the price of goods the demand persists, and the local wool trade looks for a recurrence of activity within the next week or two, although the supply of desirable wool available has been reduced considerably.

Raw Wool Sought

The wool dealers are looking about for wool with which to speculate, and they are buying more or less of both domestic and foreign. In the last few days there has been a fair movement in low scoured wools, especially of the South American and East India types. These wools probably will be wanted which will open in January, and the purchasers undoubtedly will be able to make a good profit on the turnover provided there is a normal demand for

There has been a good movement dahars in the East India types, while in the South American wools there dahars in the East India types, while in the South American wools there has been a good demand, with the range 50@60c and 65c, and some wools of mixed types, ranging from 44 to 46s, are held firmly at 70c. Dealers are paying for New Zealand sliped wools of about 50-56s grade, or equivalent, to a fair B super domestic wool, about 51@52c, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond duty, clean basis, in bond duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, in bond, landed here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean basis, and to the life declining and rolling schedules. here in the United States, to which must be added 31c a pound duty, clean content. Purchases of crossbred matchings continue to be made in Bradford, Eng., for the United States, of grades running about 50s to 56s for the most part, and English down wools have been bought rather freely also at prices which have shown a steady rise.

Foreign Markets Firm The foreign markets generally are ducing districts at different times.

New business, while somewhat quieter, is satisfactory, particularly railroad buying.

Inited States Steel is arreated to from the Cape display a strengthening tendency, while prices in Australia are very firm everywhere, as they are also in Sonth America. The notable exception to the upward movement in prices has been the showing at the Liverpool East India sales where the best white wools, which usually are bought for the United States, showed a decline of about 20 per cent, whereas, the medium and yellow wools suitable especially for the carpet trade, showed an advance of 500 the bester wools is due undoubtedly to the absolute lack of interest in those wools from the American side because of the heavy quantities which had previously been imported and still remained unsold and also because of emained unsold and also because of he tariff which in the interim from be previous sales has been imposed bon wools of this type suitable for follows.

This quarter it would seem the common dividend could be earned at least one and one-half times, with a good prospect of even larger earnings. The big factor always is the production rate. It is estimated that the East India wools, mainly on the increase in operations since the wage basis of 55@60c for good Jorias and increase has more than offset the Vicaneres and at about 45c for Kanhigher labor outlay. importance.
In summary, Mr. Urquhardt has been able to secure from the Soviets concessions and advantages tending to re-establish confidence. The manufacturers and business men of evernation will not return to Russia unti confidence has revived. Krassin has offered the chairman of the Russo Asiatic such advantages as never before had been proffered by the Soviets in any conference.

GREATER DEMAND CAUSES ACTIVITY IN DIAMOND TRADE

polished brilliants, and it is one of many signs that the diamond market, which had been stagnant for a long time, has again begun to move.

Interest in this is not confined to the few people who buy and sell diamonds. The diamond market is considered as sensitive as the stock exchange to the fluctuations of the world's trade barometer. Experts in the trade report that there has been already an appreciable improvement

A year ago the leading mines reduced production and in some cases closed entirely. Now there is a call for diamonds from many quarters, and prices have stiffened during the last two months from 10 to 20 per cent. America is buying briskly. Some European countries are buying because diamonds are counted a better se-curity than bonds while exchanges are

New Issue

$4,000,000

Boston & Maine Railroad

Mortgage 6% Gold Bonds

Dated January 1, 1923

Due January 1, 1933

Coupon bonds, $1,000 denomination, registerable as to principal, coupon and registered bonds interchangeable. Interest payable January 1 and July 1 in New York and Boston Old Colony Trust Company and S. Parkman Shaw, Jr., Boston, Trustees

The following is summarized from a letter from Mr. James H. Hustis, President of the Boston & Maine Railroad:

Property Mortgaged-These $4,000,000 bonds are part of an issue of $112,985,979 and are scored by a First Mortgage on 1651 miles of line owned by the Company, subject only to $2,838,000 underlying bonds on 153 miles. In addition to the above mileage the Boston & Maine operates under lease agreement, trackage rights, etc., 636 miles of line, making a total operated of 2287 miles. Other property on which these bonds are secured by a First Mortgage includes railroad repair shops, one of which cost nearly $3,000,000 and is said to be one of the best equipped in the United States, and valuable freight and passenger terminals in and about the City of Boston, and at other important industrial centers. The Boston facilities comprise very extensive freight yards and some of the most favorably situated and best equipped shipping facilities on the Atlantic seaboard

Ratio of Property to Indebtedness-The tentative final valuation placed on the Boston & Maine and leased lines by the Interstate Commerce Commission, including additions since date of valuation, amounts to over $273,600,000. In arriving at this valuation, the Commission deducted approximately $50,000,000 for depreciation. As the funded debt, including equipment notes, and the par value of stocks of leased lines, amounts to only $138,201,079, there is practically $2.00 of property value for each $1.00 of indebtedness

Earnings-For the so-called "Test Period" the Boston & Maine had a balance, after fixed charges and after allowing for normal dividends on Preferred stock, of $1,785,029, equivalent to 4.89 per cent on $39,505,100 Common stock. The net corporate income for the "Test Period," before fixed charges, was $10,202,825, equivalent to 1.44 times the present fixed charges of $7,070,815, which include increased interest charges due to refunding operations and to large capital expenditures since the "Test Period." These capital expenditures amount to more than $21,000,000 for additions, improvements and equipment, and should materially increase the normal net earning capacity

The "Test Period" above referred to was used by the United States Government in determining a fair compensation for the railroads under Federal control and the earnings of this "Test Period" were considered an indication of normal earning capacity The Boston & Maine is rapidly recovering from the depression of 1921. For the first eight months of 1922, Net Railway Operating Income was greater by $7,554,717 than for the corre-

Cross-Country Runners Enter New England Championship

One hundred forty-two athletes refive institutions from the Bay State, four from Maine, two from Connecticut and one each from New Hampshire and Vermont.

The University of Maine which won the championship last year, breaking a long string of successive victories of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has sent in a list of 20 entries which is the largest of the lot. Besides the University, the Pine Tree State will be represented by Bates College, Colby College and Bow doin. The other two states north of Massachusetts will be represented by New Hampshire College and the University of Vermont.

Each competitor will be limited to a starting team of seven men of whom the first five to finish will score, the team compiling the lowest score winning the title. This means that no more than seven nor less than five can be sent to the start from each squad. The prowess of Massachusetts will be upheld by Technology, Massachusetts Agricultural College, Boston College, ston University, and Holy Cross llege. The colleges and universities of New England will be well into the sport within a month. Harvard, probably, will lead the way for early season starts, for instead of staging the first practice during the week following the Yale football game, as has been customary, the Crimson will launch her season next Monday, Nov. with the first call for candidates, and regular practice thereafter. Harvard ran into a snag in her first game last year and has determined not to be caught napping again. Coach E. A. Wachter, starting his third season in the basketball revival at Harvard, will have a well-groomed five on the floor by the time the whistle sounds for the opening contest on Dec. 15 with St. Michael's College.

New names are being added every year to the roll of basketball- participants, and virtually every educational institution in New England now supports a team. Several col-leges claimed the championship of the ction last year. The high and preparatory schools enjoyed a most active season, reaching their climax in the All-New England tournament conducted by Tuff.s College.

Springfield Y. M. C. A. College,
Holy Cross and Connecticut Aggies were among the stronger teams play-ing independent basketball in New England last year. Dartmouth and Yale, of course, were in the Intercol-legiate League, the former finishing third, and the latter sixth, in the standings. Harvard had a very strong team on the floor, one dangerous at all times, and successful in the great majority of games played. The basketball revival is only two years old at Cambridge. There is little or no possibility that Harvard will enter the Intercollegiate League within many years, but she will be an active figure in the sport in New England.

Having reached last year the highest point of popularity yet attained, basketball is once more ready for a vigorous season in New England, one which promises to outdo anything that we are "done by" as they "did." H. E. Feiring '23, a regular two years have were before the safe to predict ago, and a letter man last year, is also available. John Pallo '23 is a reliable forward substitute.

Games in the middle western and Pacific Coast conferences, where basketball is a major sport, drew crowds ranging from 5000 to 10,000 last year, and though such tremendous interest is flot likely in New England, at least for some time, there is a noticeable growing attraction, and large crowds will no doubt be general. The control of basketball by a joint rules many football men as possible, believ-ing that he can develop good players out of the natural athletes. C. A. C. Eastman '24, J. M. Hartley '23, Percy erns football, has done much to give Eastman '24, J. M. Hartley '23, Percy the sport a firm footing, as well as to Jenkins '24, and E. L. Gehrke ES are likely men whom Coach Wachter will seek for his squad. There are a number of radical changes in basketball rules this year, and it will be interesting to watch their effect upon the game. An exhibition game, to which players and especially coaches of all teams within a considerable radius of Boston are invited, will be held at the Harvard gymnasium early in December. There has been some criticism of the new rules, but the general expression seems to be that they will improve the game. Coach Wachter of Harvard said yesterday that he would be willing to give the rules a fair trial. expressing the belief that inasmuch as the rules committee represents every basketball interest in the country, they should be given every assistance in their efforts to improve and popularize the sport.

REAL MARTINIA.

There is no captain elected yet, but H. C. Spruth '23 is favored to win at the election to be held shortly. Spruth'is a veteran of the squad, and while not of the fastest runners in the Conference has always been a hard worker and always sees a race

M. S. Walker '24 is the most promising candidate for the squad, making the best time. Although he is a junior, he was not out for the cross-country team last year. His development has been a surprise to Coach Eck. E. E. Krogh '23, star miler and captain of the track team, is another good runner who will be expected to deliver IN points for the Maroon.

When you see Eina for the first time, an unexpected revelation of the serious student in German philosophy. Here we have a reprint of a charming little tale, first published in Boston in 1852. The make-up of the book is as nearly like the original as possible. The point of view and commentary on life by the doll are cleverly held throughout.

There is no doubt ognizing in fiction Norman Douglas is not mountainous. But, at the first encounter, he is decidedly a great surprise. He is so unexpected. You catch a glimpse of phenomenon, and stand to stare at it; and turn to your nearest neighbor to learn if he knows anything That is what I did, in excitement, on reading that early numher of the English Review. But the people seemed to want to know what this erudite fellow, named Douglas, had to say about the amusement of London's guttersnipes. By this time I knew Norman Douglas, and he informed me cynically that he was writing a novel which would have in it every sin that had been committed, and some that never had been; and I must confess that "South Wind" is his one book I have not read. It first editions (I hope they read them, if fortunate enough to secure copies). And probably Douglas is now more cynical than ever. There was another novel by him—"They Went." And then he returned to his first mode of Children's Books travel book: "Alone." In "among its variety of combilithely disparaging most from the Cosmic Purpose of the Co presenting his knowledge and wit, in a travel book: "Alone." In things, from the Cosmic Purpose (if it exists) to the horse-chestnut tree and the scenery of Switzerland, its author says of some literary critics: England is the home of the amateur in matters intellectual, the specialist in things material. It would require a clever dissimulation not to seem like a prentice, in comparison with Norman Douglas. Anyhow, it is certain he would see through the typocrisy, however clever, and devise a sparkling analy-sis of it; our dissimulations, which deceive even ourselves, provide him with material for many of his bright-est pages. But why did he call his book "Alone"? He seems never to be alone. He has the fortune, on his travels, of undesigned gravitation toward the most mysterious and suspicious but engaging characters, and his converse with them, and his afterreflections, provide his adventures with a flavor which may be called York: The Macmillan Company. $2.

Then you catch the flicker of a disappearing smile in the half-averted gravity of the narrator; and after that your thought about him is confused. You You yourself on your guard. watch him narrowly. You enjoy his stories immensely, but are dubious that their author may slip into your thought, while you are in the act of laughing, something far-gone; for it is when making you laugh that he is, apparently, most grave, detached and forgetful of you, and so most dangerous. Yet what are you to do? Once he begins, you are bound to attend to him, for he will capture you merhaps by beginning to talk about which particularly caught his fancy during a long study of that field. For perhaps by beginning to talk about Ouida; and it will be a tribute to that almost forgotten lady of so simple, generous, and wise a kind, and as lively with contempt for the modern intellectuals as only a man with the spritely but astonishing learning of Norman Douglas may dare to show, that you soon begin to denounce the evil suspicion which had crept into your thought about this remarkable writer; and into the very least the star People, by Gaylord Johnson. Translated by F. are wont to look down J. 8 tim s.m. upon Spanish-American culture his Nation appears important in inverse ratio to its size; during his lifetime he was recognized as one of the worthy companions of Emerson and Carlyle, and that not alone as a stylistic personality, but as an inspiring idealist. Whatever he wrote was dedicated to the forever youthful in man and country; he was the apostic of a fully developed self-bood. But the testignord he most in the herizon colling norm him the world, the low full of suave melody.

What he considers innessed and and undesirable in life, at unrealities and undesirable in life, at unrealities and the accepted code of society. A keen sallor and sportsmah, venturesome and enduring, he is also a true poet, with the lyric mood of the Bernadottes and a fine command of the Swedish language—the language of heroes and poets, it has been called. In some of his more descriptive poems he rises to great and personal beauty of expression, with a fine rhythm and well-sustained form, often full of suave melody.

Prince Wilhelm has more than one string to his lyre. There are two or three poems with Greek motifs, a sonnet, "Hercules," and "The Sculptor," in which the words assume an almost plastic beauty, suiting themselves admirably to the subject. In another poem, "On the Mountain's Peak," a fairy has led the poet to the shows him the world, the law Jying and calling upon him to rule over alone as a stylistic personality, but as an inspiring idealist. Whatever he wrote was dedicated to the forever youthful in man and country; he was the apostic of a fully developed self, hood. But that selfhood he proclaimed with dignity as well as beauty; he was no blatant mouthpiece of "smart-aleckry"; he did not pretend to hold in his hand the one salvation of art and utility.

Those selfsame scoffers in our midst might be astonished, as they peruse this early contribution of Rodó's, to discover how neatly, how surely, he has placed his finger upon the utilitarian perils that beset our republic, upon the dangers that threaten all democracy when the merely quantitative test triumphs over the touchstone of quality. More than a generation before your excited young novelists, here was a young man of the antipodes writing down in pages of illuminative beauty what it takes our "jeunes" 400 pages of sociological fettion to state with less convincingness than confusion. Rodó stands for the intellectual aristocracy; he believes in that democracy which insures to all an original equality of opportunity, so that natural (not arbitrarily, conferred) superiorities may come to light for the benefit of our common humanity. He, too, sees visions of a superman, but not one who, like Nictzsche's blond beast," forgoes the baim of fove for the satisfactions of triumphant will. He would have the proveh superior realize his debt to the anonymous millions, without whom that superiority could never have been attained. And none better than he knows the futility of a life it lived for self rather than selfhood.

"The fact is," De Morgan said to a friend, "I have blundered into the wrong generation. I belong entirely to the Dickens period of life and literature, I read greedly when Pick-wick was up-to-date, and when all wick was up-to-unte, and the world was as Dickens drew it. Afterwards I plunged into an active life in which every moment of my life in which every moment of my time was absorbed by art, by chemical problems or mechanical inventions, and for forty years I scarcely looked into a book unless it was about pots or mechanisms. When I turned again to literature, I took it up exactly where I had left it off—the interregnum did not exist for me." . . . 4 4:

He troubled about no studied periods or finished diction; he has been described as a man who button-holed his reader and talked to him in homely fashion. He did not even tell a story—he let the characters in his story speak for themselves. If he reviewed a situa-tion he reviewed it entirely from the standpoint of his puppets—in their language; the tale with its ingenious perplexities spun itself out of their very human sayings and emotions. The Chinese Painter at Work

The first impression that we of the Western World receive from a Chinese painting is the great love for nature which it conveys. . . . There are various stories told of how certain painters and artists in other mediums underwent many inconveniences rather than disturb the growth of flowers, or permit blossoms to be shaken from fruit trees. They believed that plants were sensitive like themselves and consequently did nothing to injure them. . . . The Chinese artists' thorough love for nature in its many manifestations is borne out by those of their paintings that have come down to us.

Chinese painting dates back into the dim past. A woman is credited with having been the inventor. According At that date Stockholm only covered the three islands which, known as "the town between the bridges,"

And when of colours none,
Nor rose, nor amber, nor the scarce late green

Was a younger sister of the Lindship of later ages, we read, exclaimed, "Alas, that this divine art should have been invented by a woman!"...

There are records of many superb painters whose exploits, in spite of the abundance of fables and grotesque stories that surround them, bear witness to the esteem in which they were held. There was always an appreciative audience for the painters and poets of those days. Of the very earliest paintings none remain. As to their beauties we have only to read contemporary historians. These would indicate that the pairons and critics

... No preliminary sketches were made, everything was done with the first effort. The mere physical effort of applying water-color to silk or other fabrics was the least important part of the work. The painting was practically completed during the artist's long meditation of his subject. It was done entirely from memory. . . . Chinese art is an illustrated record of the life and times of the painters. A CYNIC once said that morals were a matter of geography. The truth of this apothegm may well be questioned, but some millions of

A Non-Partisan Result of this apothegm may well be questioned, but some millions of voters in the United States yesterday demonstrated beyond cavil the fact that party allegiance is a local affair. For out of that election can be drawn no lesson greatly encouraging to either of the two political parties. It is quite true that in New York a Democrat of great personal popularity was swept into the governorship by the largest majority ever given to a candidate for that office, although two years ago President Harding carried the State by more than a million. But this happy showing for the Democratic Party is fairly offset by the apparent defeat of its senatorial candidates, who at the same time were sitting senators, in Ohio and in Nebraska.

In Ohio, if the President is to be congratulated upon having a Republican elected to the Senate in place of Pomerene, he has nevertheless lost the governorship. Politicians are already talking about the effect of this reverse upon President Harding's political future.

Viewed nationally, the senatorial elections more than those to state office may be regarded as vested with political significance. In Massachusetts, Senator Lodge, after five former triumphant elections, finds himself with the narrow plurality of less than 2000 votes on the first count. A recount may be necessary to determine his position. Never was a more stinging rebuke short of actual defeat administered to a man of such station. He will be distinctly a minority senator, as the votes cast for Gaston and Nicholls exceed his by nearly 50,000. His principal opponent was weak before the public, and the narrow escape of Senator Lodge from defeat can be ascribed only to general public repudiation of his political views and not to any personal popularity on the part of his adversary.

In New York the Democratic Senator who defeated the veteran Calder was a man well known in the metropolis but of scant acquaintance throughout the State. He had been a resident of New York only a few years, and a Democrat for even less time. But the contest there took the character of a referendum on the tariff law. Senator Calder was identified with the worst phase of the Fordney law, and the responsibility was remorselessly forced upon him by the Democratic press. He went down in general public repudiation of his tariff views. In Ohio, although it would appear that the referendum on the Volstead Law was unfavorable to the prohibition side, the defeat of Senator Pomerene, if later returns shall show him in fact defeated, can only be ascribed to the general feeling that he was in sympathy with the wets. A "dry" Governor is apparently elected.

In Indiana the fall of Beveridge is more to be attributed to personal dissensions within his party than to actual dissatisfaction with the general party policy. He estranged many Republicans by the form of his fight upon Senator New, and antagonized his former progressive friends by the extreme conservatism he manifested in the course of his campaign. Nebraska has elected to the Senate a radical municipal ownership Republican in place of the conservative but admittedly wet Hitchcock. At the same time it elects the brother of William I. Bryan Governor on the Democratic ticket. Iowal despite protests from the Republican press, seems to have elected a Republican candidate, Brookhart, who will rank with the most radical group in the Senate. Yet immediately north of him, in South Dakota, Lynn J. Frazier, who was the candidate of the Nonpartisan. League on the Republican ticket, seems to have gone down in defeat.

From these illustrations, hastily drawn and by no means covering the entire field, it may readily be seen that the election turned upon different issues in different states; that the personality of the individual candidate at some points was the dominant factor; that in not a few communities the governorship was given to one party and the senatorship to another; and that in the main the results simply indicate, on the part of the American people, a certain groping for a change in political control, a change which they hope will be for the better, but the exact nature of which they cannot definitely outline.

But there was one feature of the election, the character of which cannot be concealed. In the contests involving the enforcement of the Volstead Act, whether they took the form of referendum votes or of such candidacies as that of Edwards in New Jersey, the vote was hostile to the prohibition cause. That this changes in the slightest degree the merit of that cause is not to be admitted, but it makes compulsory upon those who believe that in the prohibition of the alcoholic traffic lies the promise of the greatest good to the people of the Nation the steady maintenance of an educational campaign, and a preparation by every device of argument and organization for a more bitter struggle in support of the truth two years from now.

THERE is need, according to the estimate made by many who are in a position to assay, in terms and figures, the efficiency of the pul-

Needs of the Public . Schools position to assay, in terms and figures, the efficiency of the public schools in the United States, of a thorough Americanization of Americans. It has long been admitted that there exist radically wrong conditions in the public schools as a whole. No one has denied this, but it is somewhat disconcerting to learn that many who have been willing to admit that such conditions do exist have shown no disposition to learn just what the trouble is or to provide the desired remedy. Thus it is proposed, while Americanizing the schools, or in preparation for that undertaking, to Americanize the people who must be looked to as the providers of the means necessary to the end which it is desired to accomplish.

Circumstances seem to have combined to compel, or at least to induce the United States to reverse an ordinary and orderly process. A rule of hospitality requires the putting in order of the house in which guests are to be received and entertained, and this before the arrival of company. But the American latchstring has been out for so many years, and the company has come in such overwhelming numbers, that the prescribed formalities, if not the decorum of the occasion, has been neglected. One result has been that in the country as a whole there has been an increase in illiteracy, with the percentage higher than in some of those countries from which the guests have come.

Now it is proposed that all this shall be corrected, and as a step in this direction it is planned to hold throughout the United States, in the week beginning Dec. 3, public meetings at which there shall be discussed and explained methods intended to raise the country from eleventh place in the list of illiterate nations to a point near the top, or at the top. It may be made to appear that the unfavorable rating given America is due to immigration policies heretofore prevailing. It may be that compulsory education laws have been indifferently enforced. It possibly may appear that the failure to enforce national child-labor legislation has been the chief contributing cause.

In preparing and carrying out the program for American Education Week, the National Education Association, the United States Bureau of Education, and the American Legion have joined hands. More than fifty organizations and associations, including the Masons, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the National League of Women Voters, and chambers of commerce in many cities, are co-operating actively in efforts to arouse public interest in the undertaking. It has been proved, even to the satisfaction of the most enthusiastic workers in the field of education, that the great work which must be done cannot be accomplished by teachers and educators alone. Thus the effort now is to arouse the American people to a proper realization of the Nation's heed, with the full assurance that the response, once this understanding is gained, will be adequate.

AN EXPERIMENT in social and political life exceedings the French Revolution in depth and breadth has reached

Five Years of Bolshevism At the end of last week the dispatches from Petrograd told of much "rejoicing" because of the things that the Bolshevist régime had essayed or accomplished in its five years of life. An objective view of the internal situation of Russia from the outside fails to disclose any convincing reasons for this exultant state of mind. On the contrary, it suggests many reasons why the Bolshevist Administration should repress any tendencies toward "pointing with pride" to its achievements. In the first place, Bolshevism has signally failed in its purpose to Bolshevize the world. It has not Bolshevized any fragment of it beyond the borders of Russia. Even in restless Italy, where the Lenine-Trotzky machine made its most intensive effort at proselytization, it has signally failed in its attempt to set up an industrial and political Communist republic. It failed because the mass of public opinion in Italy, as expressed by the black-shirted legions of Fascismo, nipped in the bud the plot directed from Moscow.

Having failed flatly in its most promising field, it appears altogether unlikely that Bolshevism will be able to produce more than a ripple on the surface of things in any conutry, except perhaps in Germany. But even in Germany—a Germany hard beset by economic and financial difficulties—a new "Watch on the Rhine" is being posted by the intelligence of the world.

Having failed outside the borders of Russia, what has Bolshevism to point to in the way of constructive achievement in Russia itself? If anything of improvement and amelioration has been accomplished within Russian frontiers—and something has been recorded in that direction—it has been accomplished, not through the workings of Bolshevist doctrines, but through their gradual modification in the direction of capitalistic practices. At the "Red" celebrations in Petrograd and Moscow, Lenine and Trotzky may go through the gestures of "pointing with pride" to achievements of Bolshevism. But those achievements must be credited to capitalism, invading the citadel of proletarian defiance of the laws of economics.

In one respect only may Bolshevist leaders point to some achievement in the direction of constructive effort. That region of comparative Bolshevist success lies in the large field of international diplomacy. Here the Bolsheviki, with Georgi Tchitcherin as their spokesman-a spokesman trained in the tzaristic tradition-has said things that the world might well heed. It is Russia more forcefully than any other country that has stressed the doctrine of self-determination for all nationalities. It was Russia that said: "We declined to receive rights accorded to us by pre-war agreements, because they involved the enslavement of populations." But some of the force even of these high-sounding protestations has been modified by the fact that the "rights accorded" to tzaristic Russia are no longer proffered to Bolshewized Russia. Its bitterest enemies will admit that, in respect to the rights of nationalities-of all nationalities save the Russian, be it noted-the Bolshevist régime has lived up to its professions of respect for the right of peoples to determine their own political allegiances and their own form of government. But signs are not lacking that in the domain of personal rights-such as the rights of Archbishop Tikhon, who is facing trial for his life because he refused to lend the authority of his church to the activities of Bolshevism-the system that is governing Russia against its will yields no inch of its early intolerance and its early cruelty.

WE MUST admit a certain perplexity caused by some features of the day's news from Constantinople—

The Panic in Constantinople

Associated Press news as well as special dispatches to several contemporaries. It appears that fear of the withdrawal of the allied forces from the city of the Straits has caused a sort of panic among the non-Moslem residents there. They are beseething the authorities for aid to get away from the city. Greeks and Armenians—who may in a sense be considered as belligerents—are begging for safe conduct through the enveloping Turkish lines. But they are not alone in their terror. British, French, and even Americans are hastily packing their household goods, or preparing to abandon them in flight if the troops of the allied nations should be withdrawn.

Now if a number of indignant correspondents of the Monitor, living as near the scene of hostilities in the Near East as Indiana or Wisconsin, are correct in what they have been writing to this office, this attitude of apprehension, in the face of Turkish occupation, on the part of the Christians in Constantinople is a most ridieulous one, For they have been assuring us that the Turk never commits atrocities, or gives over a captured city to fire and the sword. Smyrna, it seems, was really burned by the retreating Greeks, and the noble wrath of the Turks at the spectacle was such that they made no effort to restrain the Christian dogs from slaughtering each other amidst the flames. The Armenian people, it is true, has been blotted out. But not by Turkish ferocity. Not at all. As Admiral Chester so convincingly pointed out, the Turkish plan was to move the Armenians—on their own feet and at their own cost from the arid wastes in which for centuries they had made their homes to the fertile and balmy regions of Mesopotamia. If most of them died of fatigue, cold, or hunger on the way, that was not the Turk's fault. Nobody can deny that Mesopotamia is, or was in Old Testament days, fertile. If it has changed its climate since the time of the Garden of Eden, the Turks did not change it. And as for the inability of the Armenians to walk thither without food, that is just another of the niggardly traits which have brought them into general contempt. Anyway, it is generally known that an Armenian will kill his brother, his wife, his children, and finally himself, just to bring contumely and disgrace upon the Turk. That is the reason there are so many Armenians dead and so many Turks alive-and marching on Constan-

It is a pity that the timorous Christians in that beleaguered town might not receive some of the protestations of that sweetness and kindliness of the Turk with which American newspaper offices are flooded nowadays.
If they only knew how thoroughly safe people 6000 or 8000 miles away from him feel in contemplating his advance upon Europe they would still their silly doubts.
However, if worse comes to worst, the United States Government will, in continuance of its established practice, have an "observer" there to report what is done when it is too late to prevent it.

IF THE report may be relied upon that Kathleen Norris has recently declined a munificent offer for the serial rights of her recent story because the magazine limitations required cutting it down, one may still maintain his faith that the literary art has not become wholly subservient to commercial demands! Yet in all fairness the question raised is not without its debatable points. No magazine can print a full-length novel within the space available in from six to nine issues, and when a novel exceeds normal length, of course, the problem becomes just that much more difficult. Under these circumstances it is customary for the magazine editor to use his blue pencil in such a way as to reduce the manuscript submitted by the author until it comes within the desired space. In doing this, the editor also has in mind a division of the story in such a way as to leave each installment at a dramatic point so as to hold the reader's interest from one issue to the next.

When it comes, for instance, to a novel such as the latest one of Mrs. Burnett's one may realize the situation when he learns that the original manuscript contained 240,000 words, who cas in magazine publication the story contained but 60,000 words. One may easily ask whether it is possible to tell a story in one-quarter the space considered necessary by the writer and still retain enough of its individuality to have it recognizable as the work of its own author. One may also sympathize with the emotions affecting Mrs. Norris when face to face with her problem.

It must be granted that certain magazine editors are extremely clever in their ability to condense. It is also undoubtedly true that some stories are too prolix, and the condensation helps rather than hurts. The only remedy to the situation, if any remedy were possible, would be to consider for serial purposes only such novels as adapt themselves to the treatment required. Here, however, we come up against a stone wall. Most magazines select their serial stories more by the names of the authors than by the nature of the stories themselves. In fact, many contracts are placed between magazine and author without seeing the manuscript. It is hardly to be expected that an author should write his story directly for the magazine and then enlarge it for book publication; it is much more along the line of least resistance to write the story directly for book publication and then submitto the mutilation required by the magazine editor or by the continuity writer in making the photoplay.

All of this leads us to the conclusion that in fairness to the authors and to ourselves we should realize that it is not to the magazine we should turn to read our favorite writers. The serial in a periodical is not there because of its literary value, but rather to attract readers from one issue to another by means of suspended interest.

Editorial Notes

Declarations such as have just been made by Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College and United States Fuel Administrator during the war, to the effect that a living wage for an unskilled laborer should not mean a wage high enough to support the laborer and his wife and children, but should be enough only for the laborer himself, are most dangerous in their possibilities. Dr. Garfield said that he recognized that his remarks were revolutionary; as a matter of fact, they were more than that—they were calculated to arouse revolutionary tendencies in the great masses of unskilled workers, who, it is safe to believe, will be an economic factor demanding rational consideration in every country for many years to come. It is easy enough to say that an unskilled laborer, if he wants to marry, should have time and opportunity to improve his earning power and become a skilled laborer; but merely saying it does not convert overnight the thousands of unskilled workers into skilled artisans. Moreover, the world will long have need of unskilled labor, else much of its most important work will not be done. Is it just policy to keep unskilled labor thus deprived of the influence of home?

Perfection of plans for the establishment by the International Chamber of Commerce, independently of all agencies established by the governments of the world, of a Court of Arbitration for the settlement and adjustment of commercial disputes is another indication that the world is looking more and more toward methods of conciliation rather than of force for the establishment of harmony of action in its various parts. The plan represents two years of careful study by experts of the difficult problems of international commercial arbitration. It has long been recognized that owing to the differences in language and laws of the various countries as well as the great distances involved and the limitations on means of communication, the ordinary legal procedure in settling disputes between the different nationals is fraught with extreme difficulty, expense, and delay. It is, therefore, believed and hoped that the establishment of this court by the chamber will result in a service of great benefit in promoting friendly trade relationship and furthering more complete understanding among the peoples of the world. There is certainly room aplenty for it.

American Unitarian Association have just made to Hungary and Transylvania in behalf of the Unitarian churches of Central Europe is best measured to the intangible results, the new confidence and course the renewed loyalty inculcated in those visited by the ence of friends from afar in their midst. Describing his observations while on the trip, the Rev. Harold E. B. Speight, one of the delegates, emphasized this feature of his work, adding:

Those who deplore our official alcothers from European councils may well remember that even if we were to take diplomatic action through our Government it would count for little unless it could be supported. It inforced, interpreted by just such fraternal and direct contact with Europe as we Unitarians have established with Transylvania.

It is, as Dryden wrote years ago:

For friendship, of itself a holy tie, Is made more sacred by adversity.

DEFINITE assertion that prohibition has made labor on the enormous hydroelectric power project, now under construction about a couple of hundred miles from Los Angeles, about 20 per cent more efficient carries greater weight than all the arguments of the opponents of prohibition combined, especially when it is remembered that this project is costing more than the Panama Canal to complete, and that it is considered at the present time the "biggest job in the world." Some 1000 men have just finished preparations to spend the winter in its neighborhood, entirely cut off from the rest of the world except for radio communication and the uncertainties of dog trains laboring miles over twenty feet of snow. It needs little imagination to picture what such a community would be like before the winter was over in the old liquor days, but under the dry régime practically no trouble among the men is looked for by those in charge.

Even if Armistice Day, which comes Saturday, is not to be generally observed as a legal holiday, the significance of the occasion ought not to fail of general recognition. Nearly everywhere there will-be some form of public celebration, but that which gives true solemnity and impressiveness to such an occasion is not the formal ceremony, but rather the individual participation. It would be well if once again—as during the dark days of the war—the service flags might be displayed at the homes of those who gave their young men in the hour of the Nation's need. It may be well to forget the cruelties and the bitterness of the conflict, but nothing should be left undone to keep fresh in memory the spirit of self-sacrifice in which the people of America gave of their best to the cause of civilization.

THE story of the manner in which Pittsburgh acquired its name in 1758 is worth recalling in connection with the recent unveiling in that city by Sir Charles Wakefield of the bust of William Pitt. It was told in a few words in a letter which Forbes, the stanch old Scotsman who commanded the expedition to Ft. Duquesne, sent announcing its success to his great leader. He dated his dispatch from "Pittsburgh," writing in this connection:

I have used the freedom of giving your name to Ft. Duquesne, as I hope it was in some measure the being actuated by your spirit that now makes us masters of the place.

It is not hoping too much that Pittsburgh still exemplifies the high endeavor and enthusiasm which thus dignified the occasion of its naming.

COMMENTING on the recent price cut announced by Henry Ford on his cars, The Toronto Mail and Empire declares that Mr. Ford's ambition seems to be that every house that has a bath tub should have a car also. If that is the extent of Mr. Ford's ambition, appearances would indicate that it is already more than attained.
